Project The Remote Influencer – PTRI constitution.

By
Anand V Sule

PTRI has two purposes: PTRI is a web based research organization. PTRI is a series of unique self-experiments.

- Members will initiate their own basic research project/s. Internet and offline research methods will be the methods used for said projects.
- The PTRI group will help society through the research projects they have undertaken. Teaching can also be part of this work.
- The PTRI group can create their own self-experiments based upon their areas of interest, specialization.

The logo for Project The Remote Influencer is displayed on a solid blue rectangular background. The text is arranged in four lines, centered horizontally. Each line of text is rendered in a bold, white, 3D block font with a slight shadow effect, giving it a metallic or embossed appearance. The words are: 'PROJECT' on the first line, 'THE' on the second line, 'REMOTE' on the third line, and 'INFLUENCER' on the fourth line.

I did not want to have a long winded, wordy constitution laid out for PTRI. I do not believe in over complicating things. Keep it simple is my motto. The third bullet point above can be used with the second bullet point: When group members conduct self-experiments, they can share their research online via the Facebook PTRI Research Self Directed Learning group page.

I kept the second bullet point vague: help society, as PTRI encourages creativity and flexibility for group members, when it comes to ways in which we/they can help society.

The third bullet point is optional for group members. Group members do not have to initiate self-experiments if they don't have interest in doing so.

I /we will be providing our consulting, coaching and training services along with our research work as part of the Project The Remote Influencer – PTRI offerings.

PTRI will be run as an unincorporated association at present. As PTRI is e-based, membership is available for people across the globe. There are presently no costs associated with joining PTRI.
